4.00pm-6.30pm UK time

Speakers:

Katherine Runswick-Cole, University of Sheffield; Margaret Mulholland, Association of School and College; Amelie Thompson, Kingswood Primary School; Dr Amelia Roberts, UCL Centre for Inclusive Education; Colin Millar MBE, Killard House Special School; Dr Janet Hoskin, University of East London; Luke Beardon, Sheffield Hallam Autism Research; Dr Chandrika Devarakonda, University of Chester & Dr Kirsten Darling-Mcquistan, University of Aberdeen

Event:

This British Curriculum Forum (BCF) event brings together teachers, practitioners, researchers, leaders, managers, and academics to share their critical perspectives and assumptions about researching the curriculum.

This event will focus on research informed curriculum design and practice to support positive outcomes for all pupils with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND).

Aimed at all key stakeholders interested in the curriculum in schools and colleges as well as those new to research, this event considers the perspectives offered by leading practitioners, subject associations and universities. Join us for a fascinating afternoon of keynotes, workshops and panel sessions.
